Profilo pratico-professionale del percorso formativo e mercato del lavoro di riferimento

The course aims to train professionals in historical documentation, in various media forms (documentaries, podcasts, virtual museums, etc.). The main purpose of the course is to train qualified professionals capable of enhancing and popularizing the Cultural heritage of the past in today's society from the perspective of Public History. Special attention is paid to the historical documentation of the environment and manufacturing enterprises in their many facets and social, economic, and cultural values. Along with characterizing disciplines related to the fundamentals of historical knowledge, theoretical and practical aspects related to history and communication are extensively addressed. In the field of communication, in particular, tools are provided to acquire the ability to effectively design and manage content and platforms intended for the creation of multimedia products and their dissemination. Therefore, the course is open to students and workers possessing skills in the broad spectrum of humanities, communication, social, architectural, tourism, economic, geographical, and political sciences. The figure of the historical documentarian, trained in the course, will be able to work in companies, institutions, private and public bodies, and social media.

At the end of the course, learners will have acquired the following skills: implementation of multimedia projects for historical popularization; project marketing skills; ability to relate to the business world to sell projects.
